

“Mint to Be” Women in the Workforce Luncheon Set to Inspire

Join First National Bank as it presents the 2019 Women in the Workforce luncheon, “Mint to Be,” April 25th! Enjoy a catered lunch, receive door prizes and hear from a designated panel of influential business women in our community. “These women, while from different industries and professions, will openly discuss the challenges and blessings of being a woman in the workforce,” says Lorenda Smith, Vice President of Marketing & Retail, First National Bank. “For years, this day was traditionally known as Secretary’s Day. We are now so far now removed from that stereotype. However, we are still mothers, wives, daughters and, many times, caregivers,” continued Smith. “Our goal is that participants will leave inspired, motivated and hopefully encouraged as these women share their own struggle of conquering the workplace while maintaining a positive balance at home,” says Smith. Keynote speaker Ginger Barry Boyd is an attorney and commercial litigation partner in the Tallahassee office of Nelson Mullins Broad and Cassel. A 2000 graduate of the Florida State University College of Law, she handles a variety of general litigation matters including multi-claim and class action litigation, RICO litigation, unfair and deceptive trade practices litigation, health care litigation, real estate litigation, securities litigation, bankruptcy litigation, contracts litigation, commercial and residential foreclosures, employment litigation and intellectual property litigation. She has first chair jury trial experience in state and federal court and appellate experience. Although she now lives in Tallahassee, she has a statewide practice and handles cases in Walton, Okaloosa, Santa Rosa and Escambia Counties. She is the former General Counsel of the Walton Area Chamber of Commerce, is a member of Rotary International, and a sustainer member of The Association of Junior Leagues International, Inc. Panel participants include Lori Leath Smith, Publisher/Executive Editor of Destin Life, Caroline McCoy, Director of Business Expansion for the Economic Development Council of Okaloosa County, Jennifer Pawlik, Project Manager/Benefit

Officer Amavida Coffee and Ashley Thackeray Vannoy, Market President First National Bank. The Women in the Workforce luncheon will be held Thurs., April 25, 2019 from 12 p.m. – 1:30 p.m. at the Hyatt Place Sandestin Grand Blvd. Reservations are $15 per person and can be made by visiting www.fnbd.com/Women and clicking on FNB Destin. You can also register at First National Bank located at 495 Grand Blvd, #206 Suite 220. #Mint2B
